

Masthead Logo

The Iowa Review

Volume 21
Issue 1 Winter

Article 12

1991

Spaces

Fredrick Woodard

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Woodard, Fredrick. "Spaces." The Iowa Review 21.1 (1991): 31-31. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.3957>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

Four Poems · Fredrick Woodard

SPACES

"A man understands when his life is built on nothing; and that's a sad day."

The lilac outside the kitchen window.
It will bloom in three weeks
I am not wearing a watch;
But I will walk into the fields that day
There will be snow as when we walked there years ago,
You pregnant for the first time.
We did not live here then; we rented the house out
To the hospital workers who did drugs
And swam naked in the neighbor's pond.

This solitude is unearned.
I am self absorbed: spring rain and sponge.
Were you here to take the walk with me
I wouldn't see you.
Your hand would be there, in mine;
But you gone from my mind;
Out the door
Down some street with no name.
I'll gather the shy sweet flowers.
Stand in the doorway and, seeing nothing, say nothing.

ONLY YOU TOOK HOLD

I take the covers under my chin with trembling fists.
All day long, I caught glimpses of you in the light on my spectacles,
you, moving on points chased by shadows;